One expert suggests that the Japanese will make no further advance into Manchuria until Port Arthur has been reduced and may be not at all, the Japanese contenting themselves with holding the Manchurian littoral and strong position north of the Yalu, which they will fortify until they are practically impregnable and await offensive action on the part of the Russians.

One Results From Accumulation of Gas in Bunkers-Ten Stokers Killed.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 23.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Central News says that there was an explosion to-day on board the battleship Orel at Cronstadt, and that ten stokers were killed. The vessel, the correspondent says, was damaged, and it will take a week to effect repairs. The explosion, according to the dispatch, was the result of accumulation of gas in the bunkers. Not Injured by Sinking.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETEIRBUTRG, May 23.—The admiralty reports that the battleship Orel, which suddenly sank at her anchorage at Cronstadt on the night of May 20th as the result, according to reports, of her sea valves being opened, and which was subsequently raised, did not sustain any injury. The investigation into the cause of the accident is not concluded.

An investigation made by the authorities into the recent attempts to destroy some of the vessels of the Baltic fleet at Cronstadt has resulted in the arrest of four Japanese spies, who seem to have escaped detection by wearing the uniform of naval cadets, thus obtaining admission to the navy yard and access to the ships without difficulty. It is believed that they are also responsible for the fire started some time back near the naval naggazine and for the opening of the sea valves of the Orel. The authorities here think the Japanese have been harbored by anarchists.

TRADE IN MANCHURIA.

It Is Growing, But Active Competition Has to be Met.

(By Associated Press.) (By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 23.—A long and interesting report upon American trade in Manchuria has just been received at the State Department from United States Consul General Henry B. Miller, at New Chwang, China. Mr. Miller says it is a mistake to attribute the growth of Manchurian trade to the building of the Russian railroads, as the bulk of produce is hauled in carts which compete with the railroads in a haul of 400 miles or more. "It is erroneous to think that the United States has a monapoly of the Manchurian. "It is erroneous to think that the United States has a monopoly of the Manchurian trade, or that there is no successful competitor," says the consul, "as there are four sources of active competition, each striving for a stronger hold on the trade, and the contest is so close that the variations in the value between gold and silver have a determining influence thereon."

thereon."

The product of the land looms of Chliss, known as Nankeens, made from the yarns produced in the various cotton mills of Chlina from both native and foreign cotton is the strongest competitor. Mr. Miller adds that the growth in the trade of United States cotton codes in Manahuria represents the greattitor, Mr. Miller adds that the growth in the trade of United States cotton goods in Manchurla represents the greatest expansion of United States trade in the Orient, and the year 1993 proves to have been the largest in its history. There is reason to believe that considerable more than is shown came into this country through the ports of Dainy and Port Arthur, and the schedule of imports forwarded by Mr. Miller to the department shows that the United States has almost the entire foreign trade in cotton cloth passing through New Chwang. One other great competitor and the unknown quantity is the competition of Russian cotton goods. "In prints," says Mr. Miller, "I have reason to think it is considerable, and in Northern Manchuria, with Harbin as a center, I am told by the manager of the Russo-Chinese bank that Russian dellis and sheetings are driving out the United States goods. These Russian goods come into the country via Dainy. Port Arthur and Viadivostok, without duty, and we have no means of ascertaining their value."

TREMENDOUS

(Continued From First Page.) but on account of his social standing, his but on account of his social standing, his age and previous relations toward the family, it was generally considered preposterous to accuse him of such a horrible crime as that of burning and robbing in the dead of night the residence of his father. So persistent reports soon spread throughout this entire section to the effect that Charlle Forbes was murdered on the night of the fire, and his body disposed of in some manner. Some contended that there was the very best of evidence that his body was destroyed and the remains burled in the grave of his aged father, who died from exposure and excitement occasioned by the fire.

Forbes Alive.

Forbes Alive.

But many of these rumors were set at rest when two young men, who were standing a civil service examination at West Appoination on Saturday, saw Charlie Forbes alight from a Norfolk and Wester train, hire a, them and drive off towards Buckingham. They followed upon his trail and traced him to the road leading to the house of Mr. E. C. Wooldridge, who is one of the nearest neighbors of the late John Forbes. This immediately aroused the most intense excitement among all those who were in any way concerned with the case. For some time, it is said, Mr. Wooldridge has been suspected of the crime. Shortly after the burning, he was one of the prominent men in undertaking to ferret out the mystery. Large rewards were offered for the capture of the miscreants by the Governor of the State, the county of Buckingham and by private citizens. Mr. Wooldridge took an active part in securing these offers of reward. Two detectives, who were employed to work up the case, had their headquarters at his house. But finally the finger of suspicion began to point toward him, and there have been persistent rumors that he would shortly be arrested as an action pilice. Forbes Alive. complice.

The arrival of Charlie Forbes and his visit in the night to Mr. Wooldridge, shouse, have caused the arrest of both, their respective warrants charging each with the commission of the crime.

Mr. Wooldridge is, as stated, one of the best known citizens of the county, He has always taken an active part in politics, and has for a number of years been n judge of elections at the New' Store Precinct: He is a school trustee for Francisco District of Buckingham county, and has made an excellent record for sound judgment and common sense in all school matters. He has an acute mind, and is a fine conversationallst, and while he has many political enemies, he has also many friends who expect him to be cleared of all suspicion of the crime.

Young Charlie Forbes is a man of splendid physique and good appearance. He is of a retiring disposition, and was not well known outside of his immediate neighborhood.

The Burning. The arrival of Charlie Forbes and his neighborhood.

The Burning.

The robbery and burning of the Forbes home has been told repeatedly in the press reports. It was one of the most dastardly crimes ever committed in this section of the State. In the dead of night, on March 3d, the fine old dwelling and ten or twelve outhouses were set on fire simultaneously by the incendiaries, and the venerable father of the household, John Forbes, and his young daughter, who were alone in the house, barely escaped with their lives. Defore leaving use house, however, they accordanced that the house had been systematically robbed of all the money and valuable papers about the premises. Later, Mr. John Forbes died from shock and exposure.

all through this section, and its latest developments, with all the many comparations, promise a case worthy of the creation of the fertile brain of a Conan Doyle or a Wilkie Coilins.

It has not been leared here up to the time of this writing whether or not Charlie Forbes has been captured. It was said yesterday that he would leave immediately; but telegrams were sent all along the Norfolk and Wostern Railroad, from Farmville to Lynchburg, and along the Chesapeake and Ohlo, ordering his immediate arrest upon appearance.

The trial of the suspected parties will take place within the next few days, and it is expected that great crowds will be in attendance, so great is the excitement and so widespread the reports of the case.
